We clamped economic and military sanctions on Pakistan because of its program to develop a nuclear weapon.. In an article for a US military journal, Professor Shaun Gregory, of the University of Bradford.. Pakistan denies al-Qaida targeting nuclear facilities Pakistan's military has strenuously rejected allegations by a British academic that al-Qaida is targeting the country's nuclear facilities in an attempt to obtain weapons for use against the west.

Pursuit of Al Qaeda within Pakistan, and the larger U S War on terror, really hold.. The Umma-Tameer-e-Nau (UTN), founded by Pakistani nuclear scientists with close ties to al Qaeda and the Taliban, was headed by Sultan Bashiruddin Mahmood, who had been in charge of Pakistan's Khushab reactor.. Another theory: as U S -Iranian relations deteriorated in 2010 over Iran's nuclear program and Tehran's suppression of dissidence at home.. He discussed al Qaeda's nuclear aspirations with bin Laden. The Taliban's Nuclear Threat As insurgents close in on Islamabad, The Daily Beast's Gerald Posner reports that Taliban forces are on the verge of seizing Pakistan's nuclear arsenal—which has the capability to hit India, Saudi Arabia, and Iraq.

The Al Qaeda-Iran Connection Some unconfirmed reports have hinted at a prisoner exchange with al Qaeda in Pakistan, which had captured a senior Iranian spy; there may have been a trade with Tehran for the exiles.
